Giuliano Dacasto started his cooking career in Rome, gaining experience in all areas of a traditional and classic Italian kitchen. He has vast experience in working for michelin starred restaurants under his belt despite being only 28.

Deciding to broaden his culinary exposure he left Italy for London and landed a job at Gordon Ramsay's Boxwood Café under Head Chef Stuart Gillies, an extremely invaluable accomplishment which also provided him the opportunity to work with the top and famous chefs around.

Chef Giuliano's first head chef position was in London, at 2 Veneti, a modern Italian restaurant which is also highly acclaimed by the U.K. media.

He returned to Milan after London to work at luxury hotel The CHEDI Milan one of the top renown hotels adding to his impressive list of achievements before coming to Singapore where he will embark on a new exciting chapter at il Lido.
